About Sitla Estate

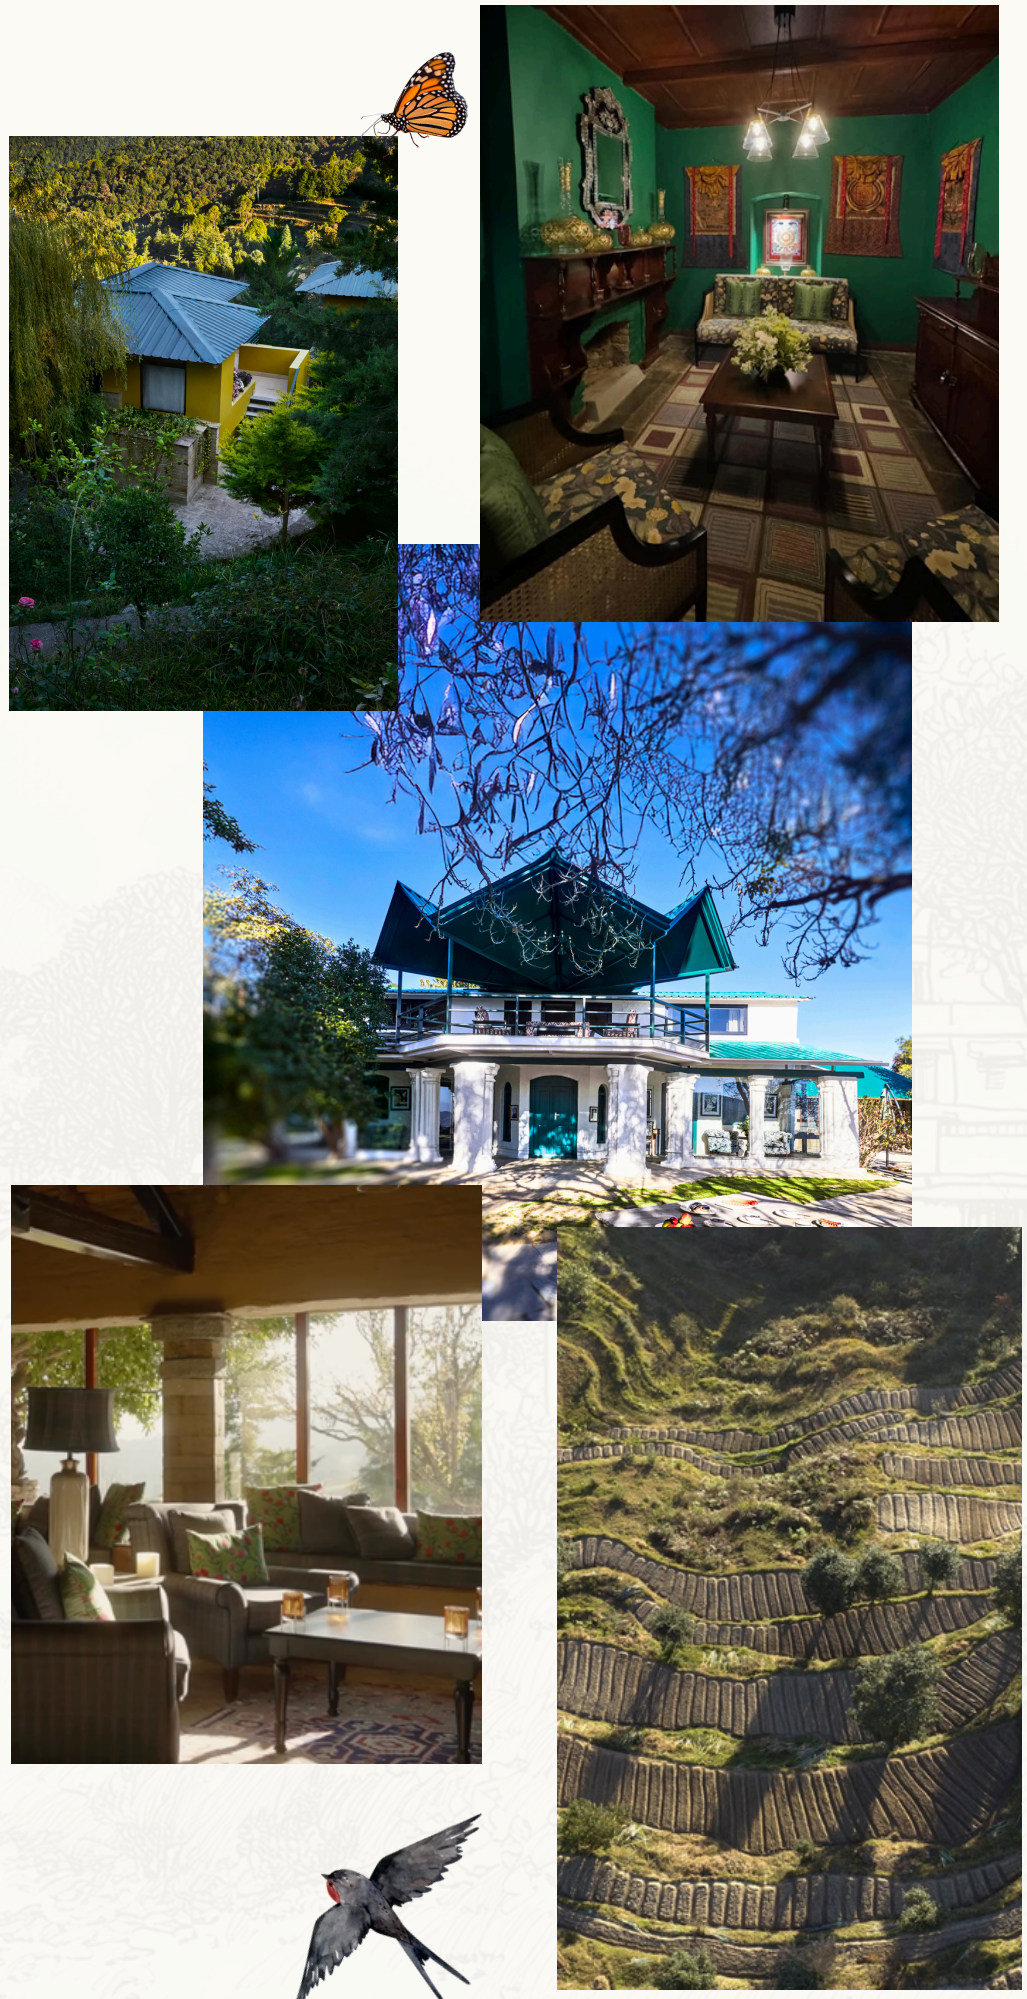

Sitla Estate is spread across nearly 39 acres in the Kumaon hills, overlooking layered valleys, forests, and orchards that feel untouched by urgency.

More than a property, Sitla Estate is a working landscape. Orchards, open meadows, forest edges, and walking trails weave through the land, creating a sense of quiet expansiveness. The estate invites long pauses, unstructured wandering, and an effortless return to rhythm. Jungle paths open into clearings, birdsong replaces background noise, and the pace of the day is guided by light rather than clocks.

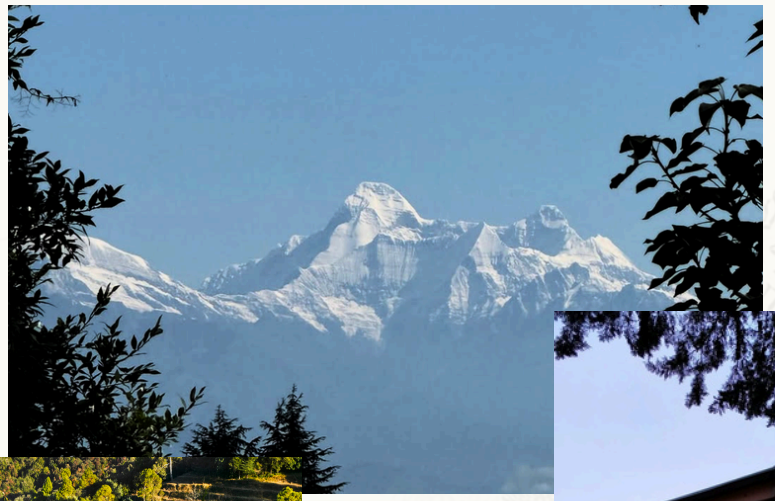

For Antaryaag, the entire estate is held as a single, unified container. This is not a shared venue with parallel energies or external distractions. The land, the spaces, and the stillness are fully dedicated to the retreat, allowing the group to inhabit the environment together and let the wilderness itself become part of the practice.

Here, nature does not sit in the background.
It actively supports inquiry, presence, and rest.
